Titleist Introduces New Ball

Titleist has recently released a new ball into their line of products that is set to revolutionise golf for the high ball flight high spin player. The AVX is a premium ball much like the ProV1 but has been engineered to be the lowest flying, lowest spinning and softest feeling high performance golf ball in the Titleist line.

Tip of the Day

Often as golfers there is many different things we are told about the art of chipping. Upon reading an article the other day by Phil Mickelson who is arguably the best short game player that golf has ever seen I realised that a lot of people tend to over think and over complicate the art of chipping. He spoke about the two basics of chipping; ball position and hand position. For a standard chip the ball should be back in your stance almost inline with your back foot and your hands should be pressed forward towards the target so that the butt of the grip is aiming at your left hip for a right-handed golfer. For playing higher or lower chips you simply move the ball further forward or back in your stance, the hand position stays the same.
