Tip of the Day

Your stuck under a tree with what feels like miles left to the green and you just don't know how your going to keep it low and progress the ball a reasonable distance so that you're not left with a really long shot for your 3rd... The extremely low punch is a shot that seems to evade most golfers but its not to hard to pull off if you know what you're doing. Three simple things at set up is all it takes; 1. Have the ball well back in your stance 2. Have the club face closed to deloft it & 3. Have the hands pressed forward so that the butt of the grip is pointed at your left hip. Then just keep your swing short back and through and play a "punch" shot!
